KCA Announces Inaugural Recipient of the Thomas George Memorial Community Service Award

Harrisburg, PA – The Keystone Contractors Association (KCA) announced Steve Motyka as the recipient of the inaugural Thomas George Memorial Community Service Award. Mr. Motyka received this prestigious honor in front of the central Pennsylvania construction industry at the first-ever PAK Awards

The KCA launched the Thomas George Memorial Community Service Award to recognize construction workers who are leaders within the community and on the jobsite. A Superintendent for Alexander Building Construction Company and a member of the Eastern Atlantic States Regional Council of Carpenters Local 445, Mr. Motyka was an excellent first recipient of this award according to the KCA Board of Directors: “He sets the bar high.”

“Steve exemplifies what we envisioned when we created this award,” said Jon O’Brien, KCA Executive Director. “He is modest, and he’s respected in the field as a leader. Plus concerning community service, there’s a long list of so many activities where he has improved life for others.”

This award was named after a former KCA Executive Director. Mr. Thomas George was a well-respected individual within the construction industry in Pennsylvania who actively gave back to his community and served on many labor, medical and pension funds – even well after his retirement from the KCA.
